"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarasparilia. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months, and am pleased to state that it has effected a complete cure. I have since had no return of the disease."—Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th st., New York.

"One year ago I was taken ill with inflammatory rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."—Mrs. L. A. THE GIRL ON THE DOLLAR. A Goddess in a Philadelphia Kinder-

Each scholar in the Kindergarten Training School who owns a Bland silver dollar possesses a first-rate pic-ture of his or her teacher. The confitmation by the Board of Education on Tuesday of the selection of Miss Anna W. Williams as instructor of philoso-phy and methods of Kindargarten training is the latest laurel in the already fame-bestrewn path of that lady, whose classic features have been stamped on millions of silver disks. Ten years ago Miss Williams suddenly became famous when the interesting announcement was made that her fac was the original of the Goddess of Lib was the original of the Goddess of Liberty on that much-abused, much-admired and equally as much disliked Bland dollar. The discovery was due to the efforts of a Record reporter, who worked eighteen months in tracing out the original of the Goddess. The friends of Miss Williams placed every conceivable obstruction in the way, but unsuccessfully. The story of Miss Williams' connection with the stamp upon the coin is interesting. In the early part of 1876 the Treasury Department secured through communication with the Royal Mint of England the services of a clever young designer and engraver named George Morgan. Upon his arrival in this country the young engraver was lo George Morgan. Upon his arrival in this country the young engraver was located at the Philadelphia Mint and was assigned the task of making a design for a new silver dollar. After months of patient work he completed his design for the reverse side of the coin, on which he represented the American cagle. His attention was then turned to the other side and his first inclination was to place on it a fanciful head of a Goddess of Liberty. But the young designer was too much of a realist to be pleased with a mere work of fancy. designer was too much of a realist to be pleased with a mere work of fancy. Finally he determined that the head should be the representation of some American girl and he forthwith diligently searched for his beauteous ideal. Through a friend who had spoken to him of the classic profile of Miss Williams' face, he sought and obtained her acquaintance. Miss Williams was with difficulty induced by her friends to pose before an artist, and after five sittings the design was completed. The young the design was completed. The young designer declared that the profile was the most perfect he had ever seen in England or this country. Miss Wil-liams, around whom this web of rohams, around whom this web of ro-mance and fame clings, is a very es-timable and modest lady. She resides with her mother and aunt at No. 1023 Spring Garden street. She is still a presty blonde, with pearl-like complex-ion, is slightly below the average height, and possesses a graceful aplomb figure.—(Philadelphia Record.

WOODRUFF'S CONFESSION. Another complication has been added to the Chicago murder mystery by another "confession" by Woodruff, the horse-thief. He says he used to belong to the Canada militia, and that during a Fenian raid he gave valuable information to the Fenians, He tells how he went to O'Sullivan, and the latter got him work in Dean's livery stable. Afterward he met Detective Coughlin. Melvill, a new character, is introduced in this confession, and with him Woodruff says he made a round of the disreputable houses. He met McDongal, aputable houses, He met McDongal, says, was known as "Williams," and the latter gave him a note to Alexander Sullivan. When Williams, or McDongal, suggested his going to see Alexander Sullivan, Woodruff says he said that he was not prepared to go to Another complication has been added

Alexander Sullivan, Woodruff says he said that he was not prepared to go to Europe. But he finally decided to go to see Sullivan, and did. He asked Sullivan for work, and Sullivan told him he had none for him.

Soon after this he and "Williams" met Sullivan on the street and Sullivan gave "Williams" some money and said "Now, pay that rent." The Wednesday before the murder he took a note cipher from Coughlin to Sullivan. The rest $12; the American Conservatory Guitar, only $15; the Washburn Guitar, from $25 upward. All American made; guaranteed not to split or warp, and to be fretted absolutely correct.

Then Woodrult relates the drive to the catch basin where the body was hidden. The confession is regarded with some suspicion and contradicts all his previous confessions.

Mr. Norment at Louisville, The Courier-Journal of recent date The Courier-Journal of recent date has the following handsome notice of one of Washington's best known and most public-spirited citizens: Mr. Samuel Norment of Washington, D. C., is stopping at the Galt House for a few days, Mr. Norment is president of the Central National Bank of Washingtons and of saveral other institutions. the Central National Bank of Washington and of several other institutions, also treasurer of the National Life and Maturity Association and is one of the most prominent and influential citizens of the National Capital. He is probably the wealthiest man in Washington, being, since the death of Mr. W. W. Corceran and of Mr. Utermehle (the latter Mr. Norment's father in law), the largest property holder in that city. Mr. Norment is a delightful companion and a very pleasant conversationalist, in addition to being a graceful public speaker. He made a brief address at a meeting at the Commercial Club rooms yesterday afternoon, but, having just Gas Stoves With Ovens, yesterday afternoon, but, having just alighted from a train, fatigued alighted from a train, fatigued by a weariseme journey of twenty-four hours, he labored under physical disadvantages. Mr. Norment has for a number of years represented the banks of Washington city in the conventions of the National Bank Associations, and is anticipating the largest meeting of bankers in Kansas City this year that has ever been held. He is highly pleased with Louisville, and was especially impressed with the splendid management of the Commercial Club, considering that body the greatest influence for good which the city enjoys. S.
